But if not, U.S. market research company NPD recently released its list of the best-selling video games of 2020 so far. The company is looking at digital and retail sales to determine which games people buy. While some longtime family favorites are still popular, violent video games, such as online multiplayer shooters, are also dominant, which may concern parents. That's why every video game comes with age ratings and content ratings from the Entertainment Software Ranking Council, making it crucial for parents to teach themselves these ratings so they can decide which video games are right for their child.
